INTRODUCTION

It is generally accepted that Kanchi Maha Periyavaa – the 68th Peetadhipati of the Kanchi Kamakoti Peetham – was born in 1894 in Viluppuram. Eachangudi was the birthplace of His mother, and it is that same house of her birth, that this shrine for Periyavaa has been established.

Periyavaa, which also serves as a meditation centre and prayer hall. The place is located down the same street as the Kachabeswarar temple, in this village.

Mahaperiyava, revered for wisdom vast, In Echankudi, his presence cast, Guiding souls with spiritual repast.

CULTURE

Echankudi in Tamil Nadu boasts a rich cultural tapestry steeped in tradition, with vibrant festivals like Pongal and Tamil New Year painting the town with colors and celebrations. Its cultural essence thrives through classical music, dance, and art forms, echoing the heritage of the region's artistic prowess. The community holds dear its age-old customs and rituals, weaving a beautiful fabric of heritage and identity.

ABOUT US

Revive the Brahmana Sampradhayam – an idea resurrected by the visionary SVR Sri Vasana Aiyer!

And SVR Sri Vasana Aiyer brought this vision to life, weaving the tapestry of Brahmana Sampradhayam into seven vibrant corners of Tamil Nadu!

From the spiritual sanctuaries of Kanchipuram to the sacred grounds of Ayodhya, Aghraharam homes are spreading their wings! The legacy continues to flourish in Parikkal, Govindapuram, Eachankudi, Srirangam, Alankudi Gurustharam, Nachiyaarkoil, Ozhugoor, and soon, at the heart of Sriperambatore, Tanjavore, Chennai, Tirupathi, and the serene shores of Pondicherry.

AGHRAHARAM HOMES

A Glimpse of Tradition and Culture

Aghraharam homes, also known as Agraharams, are unique residential communities predominantly found in Tamil Nadu. These settlements have been a vital part of the cultural and architectural heritage of India for centuries.

Historical Significance:

Aghraharam homes have their roots deeply embedded in India's history, dating back to ancient times. They were traditionally established near temples and served as dwellings for scholars, priests, and people engaged in religious and cultural activities. The proximity to temples was intended to facilitate religious practices and preserve local traditions.

Architectural Features:

Layout: Typically, Agraharams feature a linear layout of houses on either side of a narrow street.

Courtyard: Each house usually has a central courtyard, fostering community interaction and serving as an outdoor gathering space.

AIM OF SRI AGHRAHARAM

To Spread Aghraharam homes all over India and preserve the Brahmana Sampradhyam.

Rituals and Pujas: Brahmin households often perform daily rituals and pujas, such as the worship of deities like Lord Ganesha, Lord Shiva, or Goddess Lakshmi.

Vedic Chanting: The recitation of Vedic hymns and mantras is an integral part of Brahmin traditions and is commonly done in homes.

Samskaras: Brahmins follow various samskaras or rites of passage, including Namakaran (naming ceremony), Annaprashana (first feeding of solid food), and Upanayana (sacred thread ceremony), which are conducted at home.

Ahara Niyamas: Observing dietary restrictions and following strict rules related to food preparation, such as being vegetarian and adhering to a Satvik diet.

Sandhyavandanam: The daily practice of performing the Sandhyavandanam, a ritual for connecting with the divine through prayers and rituals.

Homas and Yagnas: Performing homas (fire rituals) and yagnas (sacrificial ceremonies) for specific purposes, such as spiritual growth and well-being.

Observing Purity: Maintaining personal and environmental purity is essential in Brahmin households. This includes regular baths, clean clothing, and maintaining a clean living space.

Study of Scriptures: Brahmin children are often encouraged to study sacred texts like the Vedas, Upanishads, and other philosophical and religious texts.

Charity and Dharma: Giving to charity and following the principles of dharma (righteousness) are important aspects of Brahmin culture.

Dress Code: Wearing traditional clothing, such as dhoti and kurta for men, and saree for women, is a common practice in Brahmin households.
